Purpose

The purpose of your membership is to assist you in fulfilling the responsibilities of a Faculty Advisor, as included in the Material Advantage Chapter Handbook:

The Faculty Advisor

The guidance that the Faculty Advisor provides is the primary element in the establishment and continuity of the student group. The advisor understands the materials/metallurgy fields in a societal context, and recognizes the benefits of membership in a professional society. A general interest in and enthusiasm for the students' efforts, activities and attendance at planned events are important contributions that the Faculty Advisor makes throughout the chapter year. More than one faculty member may act as Faculty Advisor; however, one person should be identified as the primary contact.

Responsibilities of the Faculty Advisor

- Promote and encourage the Material Advantage Program and participation on campus
- Encourage attendance at Material Advantage partnering society events and meetings
- Primary contact for society headquarters
- Receive Chapter materials for distribution to officers
- Receive Chapter Rebate to distribute to the Chapter Treasurer
- Advise Chapter Officers and Committee Chairs on the formation and implementation of its goals, objectives and programs
- Ensure that the Chapter understands the roles of ACerS, AIST, ASM International and TMS as professional organizations

It is our hope that you will use your memberships to promote all of the partner organizations to your students. We appreciate your efforts as a Material Advantage Faculty Advisor and wish for a long relationship between you, your students and Material Advantage.

By checking this box, I hereby confirm I have:

- Read the Material Advantage Faculty Advisor responsibilities listed above.
- Agree to support the Material Advantage Student Program as the Faculty Advisor for the _____ Material Advantage Chapter.
- Accept the complimentary membership to the partner organizations, ACerS, AIST, ASM International and TMS.
